

CONWAY COUNTY BRIDGE DISTRICT v. FULLERTON.

4-5112

Opinion delivered June 13, 1938.

1. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW—ACTS FIXING FEES OF OFFICERS.—While the Legislature has the power to fix fees to compensate all or any duties imposed by law upon collectors and other officials, it must do so by general, and not by special, legislation.
2. EVIDENCE—JUDICIAL NOTICE.—The Supreme Court judicially knows that there are a number of counties in the state whose officials are paid salaries, while, in others, the officials are paid fees for their services.
3. TAXATION—FEES OF OFFICIALS.—Since the service rendered in certifying the delinquent tax lists is the same in all counties, whether the officer making the certificate is paid in fees or is paid a salary, any classification of counties which results in a diversity of compensation for such services is without basis.
4. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW—ARBITRARY CLASSIFICATION.—Act No. 376 of 1937 providing for the collection of the taxes and the certification of delinquencies of all special improvement districts in any and all counties in the state, but providing a different compensation for such services in counties where the collectors receive a salary from that allowed collectors in counties where they are not paid salaries makes an arbitrary classification, and is invalid under Amendment No. 14 to the Constitution.
5. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW—STATUTES, PARTIAL INVALIDITY.—Since it cannot be said that act No. 376 of 1937, section one of which provides for the compensation of the collectors in collecting improvement district taxes and section two providing for the compensation for certifying the delinquent lists, would have been passed, if section three providing that it should not apply to any county in which the collector receives a salary for his services had been stricken from it, the entire act must be held invalid, since § 3 is violative of Amendment No. 14 to the Constitution.

Appeal from Conway Circuit Court; A. B. Priddy, Judge; reversed.

E. A. Williams and Owens, Ehrman & McHaney, for appellant.

Edward Gordon, for appellee.

SMITH, J. The Conway County Bridge District was created by act 71 of the Acts of 1917 (Acts 1917, Vol. 1, p. 314). Pursuant to § 11 of this act the sheriff and collector of the county was made the collector of the special assessments levied for the benefit of the bridge district, and for this service he was allowed a commission of one per cent. of his collections. The collector was required by § 12 of the act to prepare a list of lands on which the special taxes were not paid and to “. . . report such delinquencies to the board of commissioners of said district.” The collector was allowed no additional fee for this service.

When this act was passed there was no inhibition against the enactment of local and special legislation.

The General Assembly, at its 1937 session, passed an act numbered 376 (Acts 1937, p. 1359). This act reads as follows:

“Section 1. That collectors who shall handle the collection of Special Improvement Districts in their respective counties, shall receive from the said Special Improvement Districts the same rate of commission as allowed them by law for collection of general taxes.

“Section 2. That the said collectors shall receive from the said districts for certifying tracts of delinquent property in said districts the same fee as now allowed by law for certifying tracts delinquent for general taxes; viz., ten cents per tract.

“Section 3. This act shall not apply to any county in which the collector receives a salary for his services.

“Section 4. All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed, and this act being necessary for the efficient and prompt conduct of the public business. An emergency is hereby declared and same shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

“This bill having remained with the Governor twenty days, the Legislature having adjourned and not being in session, has become a law this 1st day of April, 1937.”

The collector of Conway county charged and was allowed fees for the collection of the 1936 taxes of the bridge district pursuant to the provisions of act 376 of the Acts of 1937. The commissioners of the bridge district resist the allowance of these fees and insist that the only compensation allowed the collector is that fixed by act 71 of the Acts of 1917.

The question presented for decision is that of the constitutionality of the act of 1937.

This act was passed subsequent to the adoption of Amendment No. 14 to the Constitution, at the 1926 General Election, which reads as follows:

“The General Assembly shall not pass any local or special act. This amendment shall not prohibit the repeal of local or special acts.”

It is insisted that the General Assembly has power to fix fees to compensate all or any duties imposed by law upon collectors and other officials. So it has; but it must do so by general—and not by special—legislation. Smith v. Cole, 187 Ark. 471, 61 S. W. 2d 55.

We judicially know that there are a number of counties whose officials are paid salaries, while in other counties the officials are paid fees for their services. The act 376 recognizes that fact. The service of certifying delinquent lists is the same in all counties, whether the officer making the certificate is paid in fees or is paid a salary. There is, therefore, no basis for the classification which results in this diversity of compensation for the identical service. Simpson v. Matthews, 184 Ark. 213, 40 S. W. 2d 991; Street Imp. Dists. Nos. 481 and 485 v. Hadfield, 184 Ark. 598, 43 S. W. 2d 62; Leonard v.

Luxora-Little River Rd. Maintenance Dist. No. 1, 187 Ark. 599, 61 S. W. 2d 70.

There are improvement districts, of one kind or another, in most, if not all, of the counties of the state, and the act of 1937 applies to the collection of the taxes and to the certification of delinquencies of all special improvement districts, in any and all the counties. But the act provides a different compensation for the identical service in counties in which the collectors receive a salary for their services from that allowed collectors in other counties who are not paid salaries. This is an arbitrary classification, and, upon the authority of the cases above cited, may not be made, as such legislation is violative of Amendment No. 14.

It is said that §§ 1 and 2 of the act of 1937, copied above, considered apart from § 3 of that act, would be valid legislation, and so they would. It is suggested, therefore, that these sections should be upheld as valid legislation notwithstanding the presence and invalidity of § 3 of that act.

We have many cases which have considered the effect of partial invalidity of an act as being unconstitutional. A recent case upon the subject is that of Conway County Bridge District v. Williams, 189 Ark. 929, 75 S. W. 2d 814. The appellant there is the same appellant here, but an entirely different act is involved. We held in that case that the constitutional invalidity of a portion of the act did not render the whole act void. But this may be so held only where the unconstitutional portion of the act is separable and there is a complete act without it, and it is apparent that the legislation would have been enacted even though the unconstitutional portion were stricken from it. In this case of Conway County Bridge Dist. v. Williams, supra, where the act under construction was held valid although a portion thereof was unconstitutional, it was said: "We think, therefore, that the Legislature would have passed act 11 of 1934 as readily without the provision herein held to be unconstitutional as it did with it included. Alsup v. State, 178 Ark. 170, 10 S. W. 2d 9." But we do not entertain the same certainty about the enactment of the act of 1937 with § 3 stricken from it, and we must, therefore, construe the act in its entirety with § 3 as a part thereof. With this § 3 considered as a part of the act it is violative of Amendment No. 14, and it was error, therefore, to allow the collector the fees which it provides.

It is the opinion of the majority, therefore, that the decree should be reversed and the cause remanded, with directions to allow the collector only those fees provided by act 71 of the Acts of 1917, and it is so ordered.
